You probably know that doggy doors provide a convenient way for dogs to get in and out as needed throughout the day. However, there are some facts about dog doors you might not be aware of, such as the following.

Door and Window Options

---

Doggy doors aren't just for regular doors in your home. You can have pet door sliding glass door installation done to allow pets to get out to your patio and yard easily. You can even have these doors installed in windows.

Height vs. Width

Your doggy door's height isn't as important as the width. Your pets can duck down to get through lower doors if needed, but you have to make sure your dog door is wide enough for them to fit through.

First-Time Use

You might need to show your pets how to use these doors. Your dog might not understand what your doggy door is for until you open the flap and show them that they can get out and in that way.

Professional Measurements

You don't have to guess about the size of the doggy door you need. You can have a pet door installation expert from Pet Door Products come to your home to do these measurements, which involves making sure your pets can fit through based on their size. This takes the guesswork out of choosing a doggy door and ensures that your pets will be able to use their new door without any problems.

Energy Efficiency

Doggy doors with the Endura Flap Thermo Panel or other energy-efficient options provide protection from the weather while also reducing your energy usage. These flaps won't let cold drafts or hot air into your home from outside.
